

Dr. Geeta Naran and Dental Care Kingston enjoy new downtown location

After 40 years operating out of La Salle Mews at 133 Princess St, Dental Care Kingston made the short move across the street to 110 Princess St.

Dr. Geeta Naran, who has owned the practice for the past 20 years, says the move became necessary in order for patients to have better access to the clinic and for staff to have a more efficient working environment. She notes that the practice had outgrown the space and its lack of an elevator was beginning to restrict access for some of its patients.

"Most of the response has been very positive, especially among our older patients who were maybe having a tough time climbing up the stairs," she says.

In addition to improving access for patients, Naran says the new location, which opened its doors on Oct. 22, offers an additional 1,000 square feet, which has helped improve the ergonomics of the practice.

While it may appear that much has changed at the clinic, the overall focus of the practice remains the same.

"We try to get to know our patients and build relationships with them; we don't want that to be lost in the move. We still want to maintain that one-on-one that we have with our patients and make sure that their needs are being met to the best of our abilities," Naran says.

Dental Care Kingston and its 10 team members provide a variety of diagnostic, preventative, prosthetic, cosmetic, palliative, periodontal and restorative dental services to members of the Kingston community and is currently accepting new patients.

Naran notes that visiting a dentist can sometimes be a nerve-racking and scary experience for many people. She hopes that new patients will come to view Dental Care Kingston the way she believes her current patients do, as a safe and welcoming environment.

"We want patients to feel that they are in a comfortable space," she says. "All our team members are experienced professionals, highly committed to patient centered care, and our new facility has been designed to help us create a pleasant and welcoming environment from which we can provide the best possible care."
